

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

The Parish of Bothal up to thirty years ago consisted of the ancient Parish of Bothal, including the Chapelry of Hebburn, and of the Parish of Sheepwash.

The Parish of Bothal was divided into four townships:—Bothal Demesne, Pegswood, Longhirst, and Old Moor; the Chapelry of Hebburn was divided into seven townships:—Hebburn, Cockle Park, Tritlington, Fenrother, Earsdon, Earsdon Forest, Causey Park; the ancient Parish of Sheepwash was divided into two townships:—Sheepwash (consisting of the glebe) and Ashington, making thirteen townships in all. The acreage came to 15,930 acres.

In restoring the church at Bothal in 1884, many pieces of broken Saxon crosses were found used as rubble for the walls of the chancel. A stone coffin for a child, with a few bones, was found under the present chancel wall. The fragments of the crosses have been sent to the Society of Antiquaries in Newcastle, and set up there in the Blackgate Museum.

There is a fine monument in alabaster in the church of Ralph, Lord Ogle, and his wife, Margaret, daughter of Sir William Gascoign. He died in 1513. Mr. Knowles says it is the finest in the county next to that of Sir Ralph Grey in Chillingham church.* It is probable that he beautified the church by raising the roof of the aisles and filling the windows with stained glass, of which small but fine fragments remain.

The present low roof of lead was probably substituted for a high-pitched one in 1576, as that date was found cut on one of the beams when the church was repaired in 1887.

A little more than a mile from Bothal up the Wansbeck, in the midst of the wooded banks, are the remains of an oratory, or very small chapel. Nothing is known of its origin, but as the first hermit of Warkworth was said to be a Bertram, the double connexion of the same family and the similar situation may be more than a coincidence. It is known as the 'Lady Chapel,' and gives its name to the Chapel Wood, and the 'Chapel Flower,' or Herb Paris (Paris quadrifolium), which was somewhat plentiful there before the modern collector swept the woods of all that was worth taking.

Higher up the river is St. Catherine's Well. There is also a well below Sheepwash, called St. Margaret's Well. Many years ago this well became dry, owing, it is supposed, to the spring being drained off by the pits in the neighbourhood: but it has begun to flow again lately. There are no legends on record attached to these wells.

In Hebburn Chapelry there was a chapel near Causey Bridge, said to be one of the resting places of St. Cuthbert's body. There are no remains of it to be seen.

The Rectory of Sheepwash was probably an ancient Hospital and Bridge Chapel combined. Notice of a Hospital is found in 1379. The glebe lies on both sides of the river, in order to command both ends of the bridge; in the south side it is in Bedlingtonshire and county of Durham, but always reckoned in Northumberland.

At Morpeth there was a similar Bridge Chapel or Chantry close to the old bridge, which, from its high pitch and narrowness, was so dangerous that travellers might well offer or pay vows for a safe passage. The upsetting of a coach at last condemned it.

No remains of the ancient chapel at Sheepwash exist, but the font is preserved in Bothal church.

While digging the foundations of the new bridge at Sheepwash in 1900, a low arch was uncovered five or six feet below the present bed of the river, with a large oak beam in it, evidently the remains of an old timber bridge which had been washed down and caught in the arch. The arch probably was part of a causeway across the river; and it was the duty of the incumbent to keep in repair the causeway and maintain the ferry. Briefs for the repair of the bridge are recorded in the parish books of Bedlington.

The rectories of Bothal and Sheepwash seem to have been held by one incumbent since the year 1615, but William Duxfield in 1571, and Robert Copperthwaite in 1587, held both with other benefices.

The ancient Parish of Bothal having been held by one family from Saxon times illustrates the manner in which parishes were formed and tithes conferred : and also how manors were distributed under the early Norman Kings.

It is probable that the heiress of the Saxon owner Guysulf or Gisulph was married to Guy de Balliol's second son, William Bertram, and so through the families of Bertram, Ogle, Cavendish, Holles, and Harley in the female line the manor has come to the Bentincks, Dukes of Portland.

The manor of Bothal is coterminous with that of the parish. On the south side it overlaps the parish of Sheepwash, which probably, as above explained, was the more ancient foundation, being a Bridge 'Hospital' founded by the Church, possibly the Bishop as Pontifex Maximus. The manor commands the only other fords (at Bothal and Stakeford) between Morpeth and the sea, and the lord could take toll from travellers who were not protected by the Church. (The name of the ascent to the north from Sheepwash Bridge, 'Thieves' Bank,' suggests another kind of toll to which unfortunate travellers were subject.) The manor runs in between those held by the Barons de Merlay at Morpeth, Ulgham, and Longhorsley ; the policy of the Plantagenets being to divide the bundle of sticks : and is of a straggling shape. The whole is subject to tithes, but the demesne lands at Bothal and Cockle Park (Hebburn Demesne), and in a lesser degree Causey Park and Tritlington Demesne, held by the lord himself, are freed from tithes by paying a very small modus ; a good illustration of the personal character which governed the dedication of the tithes to the Church.

Old Moor, Middle Moor, New Moor, Pegswood Moor, in Bothal, Earsdon Moor, in Hebburn, probably point to the nature of the occupation, as common land, rather than to the character of the soil. Hodgson thinks that Pendmoor, a name now lost, might be the original of Old Moor.

In an inquisition made in the reign of Edward I., called Testa de Nevill, mention is made of New Pendmore, as well as New Moor and Old Moor. Weteworth, a place which cannot now be located, is there mentioned, as well as Erdisdon, now Earsdon, and Ersingdon, now Ashington. Possibly Pendmore may have been what is now known as Coneygarth, and Coneygarth Moor or Fell-'em-down.

In another inquisition in the reign of Elizabeth it is mentioned that 5,000 acres of moor (or common) belonged to the manor of Bothal, which includes only 12,000 acres in all, or 15,930 if the manor and parish are held to be the same.

Longhirst, which till lately consisted of a number of freehold cottages, was probably the relic of the ancient copyholders, being the only village of that character in the parish : possibly with the exception of Earsdon.

Causey Park, as the name points out, was situated on an ancient causeway which probably ran from Brinkburn Priory, past Longhorsley, where there is a pele tower, to Causey Park, also an ancient pele tower, to Cockle Park, another pele tower, and Bothal, and perhaps by Longhirst to Sheepwash and Tynemouth, connecting military posts and Church establishments. The old lanes can be traced, and even remains of causeways existed till lately, notably near Ulgham Cockles. Bothal Castle, with its dependent tower at Cockle Park, forms part of a chain of fortified places and beacon hills, stretching from the border at Harbottle to the coast, of which traces are found in Harbottle Castle, Hepple, Tosson, Whitton Tower, Stanton and Longhorsley, Cockle Park, Bothal, Delaval and Tynemouth, diverging by the castles of Morpeth, Ogle, Belsay, to Newcastle.

There are several names of places which either do not exist at present or are known by other names. Horseclose house, Woodhouses, Washing-well house, Bothal Moorhouse, Bothal-barns wash-house, are not known. Gallowhouse may possibly be now known as High Hirst, and Stakeford house as Low Blackclose. Wellhouse may be either Washing-well house or Wellheads. Bankhouse may be now known as Climbing Tree, a supposed corruption of St. Clement's Tree. 'House' seems generally to denote the farmhouse. Waterside House may be what is now Bothalhaugh garden house.

Ashington and Sheepwash were by this time joined with Bothal, but at one time the two townships formed a small parish by itself, about 600 acres only in extent, of which 112 acres were glebe, and of these  $34\frac{1}{2}$  acres were situated across the river, in what was then the county of Durham, commonly known as the Bishoprick. (There is reference in one entry to 'Boshiptown (clearly Bishopton) in Bishoprick.')

Nevill) was a manor: the farmhouse has some signs of its having been a house of some dignity: there are arms carved over the door: and a large walled garden. Mention is made of the 'small village' of Ashington. Also there occurs a place called Ashington Gate House. At the time when the Registers begin, it belonged to Mr. Patricries (sic) Crow, and it remained in that family till the Duke of Portland bought it in 1792. Lord Rutherford was living in it in 1709, Mr. Mark Ogle from 1714 to 1719. There are not many names now found which appear in the first volume. The Sharps of Pegsworth (now spelled Pegswood) remain, but lately the male line has died out, and the family is represented in the female line by the Anguses of Whitefield and Climbing Tree, and the Joblings of Butterwell. Mr. Milburn of Cockle Park, was evidently a person of some note; his name occurs in the first year of the Hebburn Register (1680), and possibly the last of the family was buried at Bothal in 1763. Cockle Park is an old pele tower, in the chapelry of Hebburn, in the parish of Bothal, but he seems to have had a burial place at Bothal, and probaby one of his family had a farm at Newmoor.

There were two families of Lawson at Longhirst. One known then as the Lawsons of Oldmoor had a sudden rise in the first half of last century, built a fine house (now the property of Sir James Joicey), flourished like Job's gourd in the time of the 'Coal Famine' of 1873, and like it collapsed. The family names of this branch seem to have been William and Edward. The other, whose favourite Christian name seems to have been Thomas, was then known as Lawson of Longhirst. They lived in what is now known as Longhirst Grange, and have died out in the male line, being represented in the female line by the Bells of Harlow Hill and of Landrick. In a rate book made in 1663 the names of Widow Lawson and Robert Lawson occur for Longhirst, and Margaret Lawson for Old Moor. In 1673 Thomas Lawson, sen. and jun., William Lawson, Thos. Sadler, and Robert Straker agreed to a division of Longhirst common. The name of Bootiman, spelled in various ways, occurs often enough, connected with Longhirst. The last of the name died not long ago in Newcastle at a good old age, having lived for many years highly respected at Bothal. Possibly the family may be represented in the present day by Tom Bootiman, the champion slipper, who lives at Harbottle, and who is no longer ascriptus glebæ, but fast becoming a lord of the soil. Ann Bootiman, of Alwinton, in which parish Harbottle is situated, is entered at Hebburn as the wife of Thomas Watson, in 1809.

To return to the names of places. If Bankhouse is now Climbing Tree farm, and it is probable, as the Register records Mr. Edward Verdy and his wife and children living there, Bankhouses also denotes an old peripatetic landsale colliery, which has disappeared within the last few years, and the cottages with it. Its place is taken by Pegswood colliery. The collieries at Pegsworth are mentioned in a deed of bargain and sale under forfeiture by the Commonwealth about 1650. On the Restoration, the estate came back to the first Duke of Newcastle, the son and heir of Lady Ogle of Bothal. Wellheads must have been a place of some importance, as Wellheads Gatehouse is mentioned, and certainly two families were living there at the same time. The last remnant, a single-roomed cottage, has lately been pulled down.

Other names which remain are Sadler, the last of whom has but lately given up farming in the parish. There was also a Sadler of Tritlington, 1705. His family eventually bought one or more farms in Tritlington from the Threlkelds, and the family is represented by Mr. John Davison of Ulgham, lately deceased. The names of Gallon (farmer, lately died out), Crozier and Rutter (in the neighbourhood), Learmouth, Marshall, Robson, Hindhaugh, Moor, Anderson (lately died out), and Jobling are also found from the earliest years to the present time.

Thomas Woodman, of Heron's Close, occurs in 1703, and it was only lately that the Woodmans, of Morpeth, sold the farm to Mr. Bainbridge, of Espley.

Tyzack, of Hebburn, occurs in 1691, and remained till about 1874, possibly on the same farm. The above, George, son of Joseph Tyzack, baptized in 1691, was Chapelwarden in 1735.

The following ages represent an unusual proportion of long lives. From 1801 to 1812 there were 25 deaths recorded out of a total of 127 people above 80, and their average comes to 88½.

The same century closes with another instance of long lives. At Bothal, in 1893, there died within nine days of each other, two sisters and a brother, John Sharp, the last in the male line of the old family of Sharp of Pegswood, their ages being 91, 84, and 79, and averaging about 85.

In the Register of Hebburn, from 1798 to 1812, 18 deaths are recorded out of 140 of people of 80 and upwards, and the average of their ages comes to 84.

Another curiosity is found in the proportion of girls to boys in the following years :—

In 1695 - 11 girls to 3 boys.

In 1698 - 9 „ 2 „

In 1700 - 8 „ 1 „

illustrating one of Dean Ramsay's stories. When a son and heir was born to the house, the old gardener expressed his pleasure, adding 'there are ower mony lassies in the world.' 'Hout man,' answered the nurse, 'div' ye no ken there is maist sawn of the best crop.'

The Registers for the beginning of the last century disclose that weavers were to be found in most of the hamlets.

In Hebburn Chapelry the family of Embleton, formerly spelled Emelton, still exists in Mr. Thomas Embleton, of Earsdon, a frequent Chapelwarden, and Mrs. Ornsby, of Fenrother; the Gallons, till lately, farmed in the same township, but there are no other families which can be traced so far back. The Harbottles were a great family, but the last of them died a short time ago. But the most remarkable family was that of the James's, of which one member was clerk when the Registers began, and the clerkship remained in that family, in unbroken succession, till about ten years ago, a space of more than 200 years. See the list of Parish Clerks on page xviii.

Where the entry is illegible, or where there is no entry at all, I have indicated it by [blank], and where any doubt as to the name existed, by a query.

The letters lic. in the Marriage Registers indicate that the Marriage was solemnized by License: where this does not occur it was in all cases performed after the Publication of Banns.

It is well to remind readers that previous to 1752 the year began on the 25th of March, instead of, as now, on the 1st of January.

It is worth recording that at Bothal and Hebburn, as well as in other parishes, the Parish Clerk seems to have considered it part of his office to sign the Register as witness to Marriages. Possibly the signature of Michael Robson, which heads the list of Churchwardens, may have been that of the Parish Clerk.

PARISH CLERKS.

It is probably unparelleled that one family, that of James, should fill the office of Parish Clerk for upwards of 200 years. Here is the list, gathered from a family tombstone, and verified by the Registers.

The Register is signed on every page by the Rector, or Curate, and Churchwardens. From 1797—1804 the entries of Register as to Baptisms and Burials are in columns, with very full particulars, especially as to the parentage of the children baptized.

IV. BAPTISMS, MARRIAGES, and BURIALS, 1805—1812.

Bound in dark rough brown leather; parchment; ruled in columns; size  $17\frac{1}{2} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$  in. Signed every year by the Rector, or Curate, and Churchwardens.

It has been thought advisable not to give a preface to this volume, as the Chapelry of Hebburn has always formed part of the parish of Bothal, though in most respects it has had a separate existence. Readers are therefore referred to the preface of the volume for Bothal for general information, as well as for the lists of Curates, Chapelwardens, and Parish Clerks of the Chapelry.

INDEX LOCORUM - - - - -	112-113.
INDEX NOMINUM - - - - -	114-128.

THE REGISTERS CONTAIN THE FOLLOWING:—

- I. This book is of paper, bound in thin vellum, much wrinkled. It is in the original handwriting; some of it very old fashioned, some very good, some bad. The entries are all mixed up together. The edges of the leaves are much broken; the dates of some entries have therefore been lost. The size is 12×8 in. There are 26 leaves and one half leaf. On the last half leaf there is an account of the alms collected and distributed in very small amounts. On the preceding leaf there is the entry made by the Archdeacon of Lindisfarne, the Rev. Thomas Sharp, on his visitation in 1723.

The handwriting is apparently in the same very old fashioned style from the beginning in 1680 to 1700. From 1701—1706 the handwriting is very clear and good. From 1706—1708 it is possibly the same as the first. From 1709—1724 it is in much the same style as the first, but not so regular, and altogether worse. The Register extends from 1680—1724. The year begins on March 25th.

- II. This book is of parchment, bound in limp brown leather, roughly done. On the fly-leaf there is an entry in ornamental style:—

‘This book was bound over 10th, 1724, by William Hannay. The Register of Hebburn Parish.’

Inside the cover, upside down, is part of the Act xviii., Caroli II. Regis., ‘An Act for burying in [woollen] onely:’ also part of ‘An Act to continue a former Act for preventing of theft and rapine upon the Northern Borders of England.’

On the inside of the cover at the end, there is a part of the Act forbidding the importation of wine and spirits, gold and silver.

The size is 13½ × 6 in. There are 24 pages. The entries are from 1725—1742, with four entries of Baptisms irregularly made relating to the baptism of Margaret Turnbull (twice) in 1765, Isable Turnbull in 1767, and Ann Man in 1771.

The entries are signed each year from 1728 by the Curate and Churchwardens. The handwriting for the first two years is old fashioned, irregular, and bad, the rest is good roundhand, and apparently written by Mr. Edmund Naylor, the curate.

- III. This book is of parchment, bound in stiff brown leather of ordinary binding. There are four pages in the beginning of paper, on which are written ‘Directions for the clergy with regards to certain clauses in the Marriage Act to take place March 25, 1754.’

The entries of Baptisms, Marriages, and Burials follow each other irregularly till 1754, when the Marriages cease to be recorded in this volume. The size is 12 × 7 in.

On the last page there is a long certificate of the baptism of Henry Sadler, which had not been entered at the proper time, 28 years before.

The handwriting is that of the successive Curates. The Register extends from 1743—1797. There are three pages or fly-leaves taken up with the Directions as aforesaid. There are 59 pages of vellum, four blank pages, and one (the last) on which the certificate of baptism is to be found. Each page, often each separate block of entries, is signed by the Curate and Church (or Chapel) wardens.

IV. Is a Register of BAPTISMS and BURIALS from 1798—1812. It is an oblong book, strongly bound in rough brown leather. The size is  $13\frac{1}{2} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$  in. The pages are of paper, ruled in lines and columns, with very full particulars of the parentage and the order in the family of the child. It consists of 23 pages. Each page is signed by the Curate and Churchwardens. On the inner side of the binding is a printed form to be followed in making the entry.

VI. Contains the Register of Banns and Marriages from 1754—1814. It is bound in strong rough brown leather. The size is  $16 \times 10\frac{1}{2}$  in. The pages are of paper, ruled in red ink, with a broad margin. There are 73 pages. The entry of the publications of Banns is followed by that of the Marriage when it was solemnized at Hebburn. On the fly-leaf is a copy of the form of entry 'to be used by order of Doctors' Commons and by the late Act of Parliament.'

VII. Baptisms : the official (printed) form, 1813—1868. Pages, 100. Number of entries, 800. Bound in white vellum, size  $15\frac{7}{8} \times 10$  in.

VIII. Baptisms : the same form, 1868 to date (in use). Size  $15 \times 9\frac{1}{2}$  in. Number of entries, 319.

IX. Burials : the same form, 1813 to date (in use). Size  $15\frac{7}{8} \times 10$  in. Number of entries, 735.

X. Marriages : the old official (printed) form. Size  $15\frac{3}{4} \times 10$ . Number of entries, 80 ; bound in white vellum.

XI. Marriages : the present official (printed) form in duplicate, from 1838 to date (in use) ; bound in green. Size, oblong,  $15 \times 9\frac{3}{4}$  in. Number of entries, 124.

CERTIFICATE.

Whereas it appears on the examination of this book that the Baptism of Henry Sadler (son of Henry Sadler, Butcher, now of Morpeth and late of Earsden Moor) has thro' neglect or mistake been omitted to be registered in the Register Book of this Chapelry, where he was born and baptiz'd :—I, Margeay Potter, widow of the late George Potter, Farmer at Earsden Moor aforesaid, do hereby certify, That I perfectly remember the birth of the said Henry Sadler (whose register has been there omitted), and that He was born upon the same Day on which my late Daughter, Elizabeth Potter, was baptiz'd, which appears to have been on the 29th day of November, 1772.

And this I am ready, if call'd upon, to attest upon Oath. As witness my hand this 10th day of April, 1800. MARGERY POTTER.

Witness to the signing, WM. SANDERSON, Curate of Hebburn.
 GEORGE HARBOTLE.
